SHOWERS OF MERCY FOR BOTH TEAMS

Neither Nationals Nor Athletics in Condition.

CALL TIME EARLY TOMORROW

Game Begins Promptly at 1:45 p. m., So Washington Can Get Train. Looking For Material.

The Nationals were not drubbed yeserday. They were drenched. Here of late the Rain God has been a punctual, persistent sort of a chap. Shirking duty is not in his line. It has become a habit with him to turn on the spigot about the time the Nationals and visiting teams are ready to begin the day's business at the Seventh street bull park.

Just as Washington took the field in: practice preliminary to the hostilities Mr. Pluvius pulled off his stunt and the players drifted under the covered benches. It not only rained, but it poured, and in a wee group of minutes one could have sailed a toy boat around the diamond.

No Chance to Play.

There was no use bucking against that A whole brigade of hairy-armed. horny-handed mop pushers could not have chased the water off the field and gotten it in shape for business in a half day. So Silk O'Loughlin stepped forth from his shelter and announced in his silveriest tones that Managers Mack and Stahl had decided to call the game off.

Today there will be no doubleheader. Stahl's outfit, minus Hill, Jacobsen, and Anderson, is in such a weak condition that it would not do to even take chances of losing two games in a single day, and Connie Mack feels that his athletes could not stand the doubling-up day, and comme star tels day letes could not stard the doubling-up pace at present, especially as his catching staff is decidedly under the weather. Catchers Injured.

Red Cross Mike Powers has a bad leg that won't stand much rapid transit, and Ossie Shreckengost, Shreck for short, has a broken digit on his right hand. For the past week he has been playing with the injured member, catching over two-thirds of the balls with one hand a stant at which he had a stant at whi hand, a stunt at which he has all of the receivers skinned. He has made but few passed balls, but his "vacation" finger interferes with his throwing to bases, and fast men invariably steal on him. Tomorrow's game with the Athlictics will begin promptly at 1:45 o'clock, so as to enable both teams to catch the 5:35 Colonial Express. On Thursday the Nationals play in Boston.

Nationals Handicapped.

The recent slump of the Nationals has put them in bad with the fans as is demonstrated by the thinness of the crowds; but it is reasonable to say that the locals will do better in a short time. With Hill and Anderson out of the game, Huelsman with malaria, Stahl just recovering from an attack of the same illness, Jacobsen out of shape as the result of an operation for appendicitis, and Mullen not at all well, the team is greatly handicapped. Then, too, because of the damp, sticky weather, Patten has not been as effective as usual. The team is no pennant winner, nor is it. The team is no pennant winner, nor is trong enough to land in first division, but with things going along smoothly the other teams will have to get a hump on themselves to keep it in last place. The acquisition of Pitcher Adams, formerly of New Orleans, Atlanta and put them in bad with the fans as is demonstrated by the thinness of the ten has not been as effective as usual. The team is no pennant winner, nor is it strong enough to land in first division, but with things going along smoothly the other teams will have to get a hump on themselves to keep it in last place.

The acquisition of Pitcher Adams, formerly of New Orleans, Atlanta and Fort Worth, increases the pitching staff to six twiplers. With Patten, Hughes, Jacobsen, Wolfe and Townsend, the Nationals had a strong pitching staff, but recently its work has not been up to the standard. However, all twirlers have slumps, and taking it all in all, the Washington staff is capable of delivering the goods. What the team does need, and need badly, is one or two good heavy-hitting outfielders, and one more reliable infielder. There is one position in the Washington infield which, to say the least, is weak.

Search For New Men.

Efforts are being made by the new owners to obtain men to pull the team out of the rut, but progress to out of the rut, but progress is neces-sarily slow, as good men are not to be had simply for the asking. Big money often cannot buy them. Two of the men now playing in the outfield are batting about 200. That will never do. Knoll, who has been batting weakly Police Twirlers Did Not Allow Their Ambitious Plan to Hold Athletic Carrecently, is a valuable man. He can jump in and play almost any position without making a mess of it. Handy man to have around. The work of Heydon has called forth much praise. His work behind the bat has been ex cellent. He has played in twelve games, and is next to the best fielding catcher in the league, according to the latest compilation of averages, and has demonstrated that he has an arm that it will not do to take liberties with. In the series with St. Louis only one base was stolen off him, and that was due to a slow delivery by Wolfe. He caught Stone by at least five yards in the second game, and after that only one Brownleg attempted to steal off him.

CORCORANS HAVE STARTED.

At Fourteenth street and Florida avefeated the Sudwarth Printing Company feated the Sudwarth Printing Company by 7 to 4. The features were the work of the Corcorai, infield, which made three double pluys; phenomenal stops by Teeple, Fenton, and Latten, and the pitching of O'Knight. The Corcorans have organized and want games with teams in the District. Address E. C. Edwards, manager, 400 Seventh street northwest.
